MicroBridge 6pole Female connector housing

General Description of Changes

Valued customer, with this product change notification, we want to inform you, that for our connectors listed below under part numbers we will build an additional molding tool for the connector housings. The internal serial production shall start in September 2024. Affected Article Numbers and effective date you can find in the table below. This will be operated without part number change and has no impact on form, fit or function of these products. Internal product and process approval process will be performed according to the VDA Matrix for product releases. The respective testing will be performed and for customer requiring PPAP a PPAP level 1 with extended documentation maybe requested. We will deliver a updated PPAP before shipment of connectors containing components molded with the new tool.
